

ORIGIN OF COMMUNICATION

Communication is an agreement among all things placed in universe. It is a common opportunity of all features and components to accomplish this agreement. The way these features and components, actions in process or connection itself, are linked together, creates a situation which did not exist before this relationship was established. The newly-created situation is horizontally activated and constitutes their emotions.

The level of emotional state depends on the number of features and components of every object and subject, which on their part interfere with the meaning each of them acquires and which take effect on time. It also depends on their permanent state.

Meaning means the way each of them is placed on and what each of them is. This for us constitutes the logical motive. This is a common state. State as meaning is a feature of thinking process. Precisely, it is its highest peak when the qualitative selection of verticals arising from this process is done. The new top level is meaning itself.

It has got this universal feature and establishes a relationship with emotions. It is obvious, I believe, that meaning has more cosmic components than emotions due to its hierarchy which does not correspond to the honorific function but to the major one. Alternation is an indispensable to accept their existence and being, and afterwards their function. Alternation in a cosmic state exists as a conditioned of being and cannot be comprehended without its function, manner and level.

Existence and community of all mentioned functions participating in the cosmic features of species make human communication possible. This movement becomes exchangeable depending on the subject's intelligence or intellectual viewpoint.

What is the intellectual viewpoint? Before explaining this we should clarify what intelligence is. Intelligence is the product of the neurons' work present in a man's brains, opportunity for a mutual co-operation with the biological features. When the neurons enter in process we gain a new state, newly created from their work, the psychological state.

In other words, the psychological state of the subject includes its existence and the content (intelligence). Its process brought in the meaning state. All mentioned above becomes obvious by intelligence which is a principle of the whole; let us now consider intelligence as feature.

Intelligence as a feature exists before man is created, before the mother feels the baby alive in her womb, before the baby sees the world. But it becomes cognitive to the others after the first appearance (when the species starts to perceive, reacts). Intelligence is the work of soul, which comes because it has to and there is no other way (it is its universal moral).

Being cast in form is not intelligence, but an opportunity to express it; it is the complete organized form of this action. This action brings about communication by touching the center of its own content.

It is and becomes indispensable as it carries on the conscious action of our intelligence being itself; when we say "our" we mean all people.

When we communicate it means we understand because we do it consciously, we aim at something. This is the order of speaking through which we communicate with everybody. This order is transmitted through the complete organized form thus increasing the emotional situation which is an unchangeable way of being. It derives from that integral and expresses itself in literature, philosophy, science, music etc.

I herewith explained that communication is an opportunity and solution for everybody, which is accomplished through intelligence and follows its own order. It has chosen the silent feeling as its consciousness and ontology.

We should also define the relationship between the form and content (being-intelligence) stressing that being is the possible ground to place the content on. The place we put it, helps qualitatively the descriptive-waving - brain opportunity. Consequently, the content develops, completes and organized the way to the highest activity that is the symbol.

This is naturally and equally linked with those people who share the same level of education, same way of living and same ideas. It is clear then, that despite the large variety of first step information, at a certain moment we communicate which means that we do it on purpose, moreover we aim at it.

Communication as a subject's goal tends to bring them together and unify them. This is done by its existent and purposeful core which remains a stable state of being - its equilibrium.

One could easily ask: Lady, communication nowadays is very well organized; in the prehistoric ages the only means of communication was action, how did we come to what we have today?

Of course our lecture considers man even at this moment, because it is based on the truth, so that man manages to reach its own self.

Through retrospective, let's go back to prehistory as a form of our existence and with common characteristics for all of US. While talking about them they could come to our vision or WE go there on this purpose. The first thing we encounter is the category of time and space which is ignored by those people as they are the first nominators of this world. It made no difference for them as this thing could not exit at that time.

It is understandable that time and space did not have power on them, consequently nominations did not have defined limits. They did not search anywhere for them, but they did what they should do: they opened the door to a deposit of experiences and meanings of the cosmos.

Cosmic Memory is a live and real experience, state which made our predecessors ask:

"Is it me in cosmos or did cosmos come down here". Experience and liveliness did not resemble a visit of spirits, but they came to one's mind with all the intensity of living, with all the similarity, ability and features where their authority was indulged in. Exactly this authority allowed Them to send representatives from their kingdom through the language of symbol.

If you follow this logic you should take into consideration the fact that the symbol in a human being is the same as the symbol of another human being (because it is cosmic feature not a personal one), and it is not necessary to search for it in a third subject; it would be foolish to think that it is not identical in all human beings.

The symbol feature is the highest form of knowledge and when we possess it, it extends in space where it regenerates. Experiencing of this regeneration at the meeting point of form and content of symbols could be called happiness. Emotional experience coming from this state, common feature of all human beings with the universe, is created before man made the big discoveries.

Thus, symbol was their first perception, human and universal phenomenon, and similar idea of cosmic possession. There we meet the art of acquiring virtues; they establish such a relationship and interpretation between themselves that if we could manage to read it would bring us in contact with the cosmic source.

These people are much appreciated and distinguished for their Wisdom and Personality shown at the Origin.

Concluding my opinion about language of symbols at its first steps, it is the only thing WE have not understood, those which are expressed clearly. There is no way we can say this for the language, because it is not one single whole for all people, but it is something with defined dimensions, it is touchable, reachable (language of a nation, of a group or community). Symbols is something else, it includes all people, experience, meanings, is a feature for all cosmos, without divisions. Symbol is a universal category which includes capabilities with or without intelligence, but with sure emotional density.

Symbol lives with the language and communication; it participates with concepts like time and space; it has got its own logical timing. It would be reasonable to say that the languages of our predecessors are form-and-content related, because they share common elements with the languages of thousands of years later, which is Our age.

This form-content relationship of ages we are considering comes from their association and continuation of the same internal experience and universal features.

The result of this study consists in what is unreducible, opportunity of human communication, a fact which cannot be ignored and always regenerates.

The ability of being reborn uninterruptedly is an exclusive, cosmic, universal feature of human beings, and nobody has the right to interrupt this feature.

The fact that communication is an internal state of the species, results from the preceding fact of life in cosmos. Cosmos is the logic where events establish a connection between each other (from cosmos to earth) inseparably and very obviously the same as man (cosmic law). This happens due to their association and continuation in time with the same experience. Following this process, cosmic energy is a perception sense of principal function. This is the moment when scientists separate the two states of existence, it rules the language of symbols which belongs to our predecessors, and whereas later on articulation differs by the certain types of activity they exercise.

It defines the biological and psychological function as well as the difference between psychic processes which redefine their experience. In other words, the prehistoric man rules over time and space as member of two worlds (cosmos and earth) while the new man is subject of laws ruling reality (its limit). Beginners of earth were members of “free kingdom” and part of the only valid system in a specific psychological state. Their being was not individual experience, because the framework of this system is presented in the time-space sphere.

This kingdom was understood as following: “That which was thought and afterwards felt did not submit to the psychic condition of existence (as it is different in each subject) but to a special way of existence from which the space-minded state results”. This state does not depend on the physical condition of the subject, not even on its co-existence in time, but on the way of thinking and feeling in comparison with the way of acting. This manner expresses identification of the categories of their co-existence and interrelationship with cosmos, it express the logical concepts of successors. Now we may ask: Is there any complete separation between them?

Our intellectual and emotional capability is unnoticeable in front of this separation, because it depends on the quantity of reality itself; it is inside us, a very important factor for our features and our contact through the language of symbol. It is the language of love, the largest and most difficult victory of human race (its Puritanism). This is the main goal of man which controls intelligence and feelings, the power of reasoning and love, not becoming a slave of this control or its tendency. The direction and intensity of cosmic forces here is full knowledge; it enlightens the epoch of meaning and interferes with abilities of experts.

This wonderful embodiment of spring “ozone” is the noisy messenger of the impressive cosmic Kingdom which is coming. It is a silent competition which pours lots of water on US, like tears and blood of people and earth.

But what was that? That is the last arrival point not facade glittering like a cooper pot cleaned carefully.

Surprise, surprise! This ship was hindered by the storm not at night but at daylight, it landed in our planet. Man himself understands it better than anyone else if he refers to its Origin. He comes with a Doctrine and does his best to put that into practice.

“Is it possible that the demand to keep the system of clean Idea and practice linked together brought about disagreements and alternatives?” Of course it is not.

The difference between the first man and the modern one still has its value, which acts like a movement and becomes more and more complete. The reason of existence stays in the fact that people have cosmic nature and suchlike they come nearer by interdependence and become abolished by partiality because they have common features.

This statement carries the paradox of barrenness of one or other (idea or practice) due to which successors took the power which they should have taken somewhere else (in practice) not because they were the first to come, but because they were spatial.

Besides this, we also said that interrelationship with cosmos was an opportunity not an action taken for US, thus let’s analyze our modern time which is shocked due to obvious ethical problems. Our time has selected success instead of nature, power instead of justice, prestige instead of happiness. I am sure that a person who is “idealist” undertakes more intellectual operations than if he was “hedonist”. This must not surprise us, because the process of thinking needs concentration. Since WE define the frames, we are out of the participation in this intellectual and very complicated evaluation. Our baby-like voice, which is the symbol (ideal), knows more as it comes above our relative time and space and gets lost in its clearness. The process of getting lost is the basis of the principle, where our origin foundation stands on; when we find it back we feel we are lying in the universe (our nature not occupation).

There is a powerful system there which allows us to clarify them. Our conscious opinion (product of our psychic work) manages to acknowledge the meaning which is easy for anybody to understand.

This is nothing else but a satisfactory way to include it in the feelings and motive that define this common or individual necessity. What we hear depends very often on how each of us understands and feels it. What an idealist chooses differs from what a hedonist chooses (suffering or altruism). We notice that something was born within us: “association of extension”. It is an emotion which has liberated itself and has gained calmness. This means that the “idealist” has liberated himself from measurements and now he can express his true feelings. He acted like in his spiritual state. The motive of the same state responds to the “Big human manifest” which for a hedonist has fallen into the trap of parts, separation, and division. The idealist tries to make a step forward getting rid of limits and replacing them with tolerance; human race does this looking at man, languages do this using human communication, symbol. Through this analysis I tried to express what we all need today, communication in everything as part of the whole.

Communication is indispensable, psychologically and intellectually. It meets with desires and gives us satisfaction. This good will and understanding protects our planet. It reaches the goal of protecting the underground symbols which come repeatedly to every human stage. Their ability to act should not be put under limits.

Social unification, which is the world communication, is happening under this necessity as long as it is suppressing separation and replacing it with desire. Awakening brings about the desire to be together, to speak the same language, to find a common convention.

The image of community is equal to human nature. It is an uninterrupted effort to get to know the world. It is understandable that this movement with valuable social characteristics is done by the whole society. The goodwill, friendly tendencies are primary here. They constitute a high level of civilization and are governed by the society demands.

Thus the society proceeds with what is in common; it should have all the facilities to open the free way to universal communication. It still remembers the Origin which we love and are still longing for. This is real and true as it responds to the feelings of all groups of people, their judgment and intellectual abilities interwoven in one’s personality. This is a common direction for everybody.

It is the sweet feeling which brought us to this congress on communication, through art, language of symbols or conventions and communication, a necessity and means of people's unification. Both means have Love and Wisdom; they obviously express the motive of this movement. They carry on opinions, force and good will needed to achieve something. This is the starting point where we find its origin. It will lock the gloominess of today by its reasoning and will cover the world by its nature. The language of symbols carries on the secret code which moves the world. It expresses all opinions and feelings that finally refer to the universal one. Unity of all different peoples and their increase in number will create the "Noble tribe" of human race, which is related to the same emotional experience from the Origin, to the First Saints.
